Wholistic Practices – Personal Feedback and Follow-Up on Outcomes

1. Purpose of the study

We are looking for the answer to this question: If you get massage or energy or body work, will you be “better off”? Another way to ask this question is “Does it help in any way?”

2. What you’ll be asked to do

A trained expert will offer you a choice of massage, energy, or bodywork sessions. You will choose which one, and for how long, up to an hour. We will talk to you when you start, during it, and a couple of weeks after you’re done. We’ll ask how you feel – health, happiness, calmness, and things like that. We will also get information from your Individual Service Plan about the supports and services you get, plus what they cost.

3. Any risks and benefits

Benefits: you might enjoy these treatments. You might feel better in some way or ways. You might find out that these treatments could make your life better, and keep doing them.

Risks: You might not like the treatment. You might want to stop. (You can, any time.) Or, you might like them, and want to continue, but maybe no one could pay for it. You might not like us interviewing you about all this. But you can stop that, too, with no problem.

4. Freedom to say NO

You don’t have to do this. It is perfectly OK to say NO. Nothing bad will happen. You can also start, and then stop. Any time, for any reason, it is all up to you.

5. This is private

The people doing this work will not tell anyone else your name or anything that you want to be private. We will use our interviews with you to put together an “average” of all the people doing this. But, if you WANT others to know about this, you are free to tell them – or ask us to tell them.

Wholistic Practices Inventory: HOW DO YOU FEEL?

(To Be Answered by the Person and/or Whoever Knows the Person Best)

SEQUENCE:
First ask the first item about THEN, before beginning Wholistic Practices or Body Work. Next, immediately ask about NOW. Example of wording: “About the reason you came to Wholistic Practices, how were you doing before you came, bad or good? OK, and how about now, bad or good?” Be flexible in wording. Adapt to the person.

METHOD:
Each quality item is approached as two “Either-Or” questions. For example, Either-Or question on the first item is “How do you feel about being calm, good or bad?” Once the person answers, for example, “good,” the follow-up is a second Either-Or question: “Would you say good or very good?” (“In between” is implied, if the person says “neither” or “OK” or “neither” or any similar response. But answers like that have to be checked by probing with “Oh, so it’s in between, not really good or bad?”)

Appendix B: Terminology

Wholistic Practices: Terminology

The term Wholistic is used in the Networks initiative. Is this different from the more widely used term Holistic? Perhaps, but there is no clear consensus among authorities www.Grammarist.com reports that:

Holistic is the philosophy that all parts of a thing are interconnected. In medicine, holistic treatment is the treatment of a person as a whole, mind, body and social factors. Related words are holism and holistically. The word holistic is first seen in 1926, holistic medicine appears in 1960.
Wholistic is the philosophy that all parts of a thing are interconnected. In medicine, wholistic treatment is the treatment of a person as a whole, mind, body and social factors. Wholistic appears in 1941 as a cross between holistic and whole.

Wholistic and holistic are words that are interchangeable, though holistic is used more often when referring to holistic medicine and wholistic when referring to a philosophy of life.

www.dictionary.com simply says:

In the current Networks Wholistic Practices Initiative, it is probably most important to recognize that Wholistic work goes beyond the “medical” model and into realms not yet incorporated into mainstream medical education. Where the word Holistic is often paired with the work “treatment,” the medical model / paradigm is implied. In this and future reports, the term Wholistic will be paired with the word “session” to emphasize that Wholistic energy work presumes that the field of the practitioner and the participant are interacting – on a course toward healing and well-being of both. This is different, perhaps in an important way, from thinking of the practitioner as purely active and the participant as purely passive. The Wholistic Session terminology presumes a mutuality that occurs beyond the day to day assumptions of human individuality and separateness – and this is a different paradigm entirely from traditional “treatment.”
